REUSE-RECYCLE-REDUCE CONSUMPTION

“To take steps now to strengthen, heal and renew the face of Earth” is one of the 4 “generous promises” made by the Congregation of St. Joseph. As a mission of the CSJ, we at People Program take this promise to heart. We have signed up for the city’s resumed recycling service, and encourage you to do so too. While you are on campus, you can recycle plastic, paper, aluminum in our recycle bins in the break room. We also have a compost pail there for your food waste (no meat please.) We use both sides of our paper whenever we can and monitor our thermostats to reduce energy use. We hope to invest in a rain barrel this summer to help conserve water. Let us know what other suggestions you have so that we can protect our “home” from further degradation.

HAVE A LAUGH!!!!

The year is 2020 and the U.S. has just elected the first woman, an LSU graduate, as President of the U.S. A few days after the election, Susan Boudreaux, the president elect, calls her father to encourage him to come to the inauguration.

“I don’t think so,” he says.
“Your mother isn’t as young as she used to be and my arthritis is acting up.”

“Don’t worry Dad; I’ll have Air Force One pick you up and take you home.”

“Well, it’s a big day, and I don’t know what we’ll wear.”

“Oh, Dad!” I’ll help you both pick out something new once you’re here. My treat!”

“Susie, you know I can’t eat that rich food you’re sure to have.”

“Dad—Listen, there will be a variety of foods, and I’m having one caterer from New Orleans so you will find something you like. This is so important to me.”
Reluctantly, Mr. Boudreaux agrees, and on January 20, 2020, Susan Boudreaux is being sworn in as President of the U.S. Her proud parents are sitting in the front row next to a prominent senator from California. Mr. Boudreaux leans toward the senator and whispers, “You see that woman over there with her hand on the Bible, becoming the first female to be elected President?”
The senator whispers back, “Yes, I do.”
Mr. Boudreaux says proudly, “Her brother played football at LSU.”
