Ha! Ha! Ha!

Recently, I was diagnosed with A.A.A.D.D.....Age Activated Attention Deficit Disorder. This is how it manifests itself: I decide to wash my car. As I start toward the garage, I notice there is mail on the table. I decide to go thru the mail before I wash the car. I lay my keys down on the table, put the junk mail in the trash can under the table and notice that the can is full. So I decide to put the bills back on the table and take out the trash first. But then I think, since I am going to be near the mailbox when I take out the trash, I may as well pay the bills first. I put my checkbook on the table and see that I only have one check left. My extra checks are in the study, so I go to my desk where I find the can of coke that I had been drinking. It’s warm so I bring it to the refrigerator. As I head to the kitchen, I see a vase of flowers that need to be watered. I set the coke down and discover my reading glasses that I’ve been searching for all morning. I decide I better put them back on my desk, but first I’m going to water the flowers. Suddenly I spot the TV remote, and decide to put it back in the den, but first I’ll water the flowers. The water spills so I put down the remote and get towels to wipe the spill. Then I head down the hall trying to recall what I was planning to do. At the end of the day, the car isn’t washed, the bills aren’t paid there is warm coke sitting on the counter, the flowers aren’t watered, my checkbook has one check, I can’t find the remote or my glasses, and I don’t know where my car keys are.!
